“Punch it.”

As quickly as I could, I shifted into neutral. The engine in my car suddenly stopped. I was able to coast into a parking spot with the little momentum the vehicle had left.

After a short assessment, I realized that car was going to need some work. 4 months previous, my engine light came on indicating that my fuel pump needed replaced. I replaced it. Fix 1 complete! The light stayed on and the error code continued to state that I still had a bad fuel pump. That's when I learned that the car has 2 fuel pumps. Welcome to the world of “Hyundai fancy.” It needs two fuel pumps to feed it's monster 235 horses of power! I replaced the other fuel pump. Fix 2 complete!

The car ran great until now. I pushed the car from the street into a bank parking lot, determined to fix it myself. I brought tools to the bank, jacked up the car and started getting to work. Only a few things could cause the symptoms it was having, including two sensors, which I replaced. No go.

A mechanic saw me working on my car and gave me this advice, “Punch the gas tank.” Only the gas tank? He didn't have to ask twice. The car immediately started. Then he said, “You have a bad fuel pump.” Someone shoot me.

I drove the car home and proceeded to put the OLD fuel pump back into the car. The replacement part will come next week, but I need a car in the meantime. Fix 3 complete! The car is running... for the moment. When the new part comes, I will have replaced 4 fuel pumps in 4 months.

As much as I make fun of my car, it's the nicest car I've ever owned. At nearly 200k miles it still gets me where I need to go. That doesn't stop me from thinking about taking up smoking every time I tear the back seats out of my car and open the fuel tank.

For some their faith has broken down. For others, it's on fire. Something about it has fractured- a piece here, a piece there and now it's simply not “working.” It requires that people get under the hood, maybe with a friend who understands well enough to advise, “This is the area to hit.” Once fixed, that faith can take them places they only dreamed of. Getting that work done will fuel far more than 235 horses of power. It will fuel a life inspired by the Spirit of God.

2024 Sharon Neifer Memorial Scholarship Recipients

God has blessed me through Lindsey Trinity in various aspects. Since I started going to the church, I grew close to a majority of the members of the church, some I would even consider family. I was able to surround myself with the best people that help support me and push me to be my best. I was blessed to find my mentor, Nancy Lipstrow, who has since been a close friend in my life which rooted from Christ. I participated in bible school and even went on the ASP trip, which helped me to gain a new perspective on my relationship with God, as well as get to know my church members including Tim Arnold, Ryan Smith, and Russ Zimmerman, who are phenomenal mentors in life and faith. I truly feel that my relationship with God has only gotten stronger, as all of these events have allowed me to grow as a Christian, as well as grow closer to him.

Luke Durbin

God has blessed me in so many ways. Through God, I have truly found myself as a person. I feel that I have found my purpose. I think that he has shown me how important I am as a big brother, not only to my sister, but to any of my friends and others that may need a big brother to help them through life, to give advice, to be there when they need protection, and most importantly to bring them closer to God. Thanks to Jesus Christ, I am starting to grow into the man that I have always wanted to be. As my faith strengthens, I can feel myself becoming more complete. When I read my bible, I feel comfort and peace in knowing that I do my best every single day to live a life that my Lord and Savior would be proud of. When I pray to God for opportunities, I do not forget to thank him, whether that opportunity is big or small. It is my job to see those opportunities and I know that when I see it, he showed it to me for a reason. All I can do is thank him at the end of every day for the life he has given me. Amen!
